Invitation from the Local Organizers

The 10th Asia Oceania Mass Spectrometry Conference (IMSC) will be held at the ANA Intercontinental Ishigaki Resort, Ishigaki Island, Okinawa, Japan, from June 22 to 25, 2025, hosted by the Mass Spectrometry Society of Japan..

The AOMSC is the largest international conference on mass spectrometry and related topics in the Asia-Oceania region and has been held every other year since its first meeting in Tsukuba, Japan, in 2010, although the 9th conference was unfortunately postponed in 2021 due to the global Covid19 pandemic, In 2023, the 9th meeting was successfully held in Jeju, Korea. Over the past 15 years, the AOMSC has played a pivotal role in providing a unique platform for sharing research results and experiences through sessions on a wide variety of topics and a young scientists' forum. Continuing this tradition, the 2025 conference will be held in Ishigaki, Japan's southernmost subtropical island, providing a venue for sharing discoveries and breakthroughs in mass spectrometry. The venue faces a beautiful beach, and we expect lively discussions to take place in a unique culture blessed with nature.

Geographically located in the heart of East Asia, Ishigaki Island, AOMSC 2025 will demonstrate that our scientific community is a global organization.

We invite you to support this important scientific event and contribute to the successful organization as a donor, sponsor, advertiser, or exhibitor. Several options are listed in this invitation.

We are looking forward to our successful cooperation in the organization of the Conference.
